Twas good, The Incredible Adam Spark ken? David Lodge has a similar way with humor and tragedy in his Henry Pratt novels ,especially the first one,Second from Last in the Sack Race. Has a lesbian sister, his parents have topped themselves from the sounds of it although the story is told by Adam so sometimes the details are a bit hard to grasp because he sees the world differently due to his learning difficulties - or so we're led to believe and if that wasn't edgy enough for you, his girlfriend has cystic fibrosis.

It'sdistressingto see this misguided innocent led astray by his 'mates',bu
It's written in the dialect that James Kelman and Irvine Welsh pioneered, from the point of view of an year-old Falkirk boy - Adam Spark - who clearly loves language, but would generally be considered to have learning difficulties. Queen fan.
